EXPRESS YOUR POINT OF VIEW

World events are continually changing from the increasing polarization of major world powers to the recent U.N. Security Council Resolution concerning Israel. Stan Nachfolger, former teacher at Concordia University and Dawson College has been making sense of it all for over 20 years at Cummings. His classes, given at the Cummings main campus and satellite centres in Westmount, Boca and Fort Lauderdale and now in the West Island, are overflowing with enthusiastic members. "The participants are so engaging and bright and come from all walks of life," says Stan. "They bring their collective life experiences to the classes and the ensuing discussions are phenomenal." Stan encourages class members to interrupt and make comments and ask questions. "I must be extremely well-prepared as the learning process goes both ways. They see that I truly enjoy presenting and discussing local, national and international political issues and they are at once stimulated, challenged and informed".
